

Biography of Christopher Chan

Christopher Chan is the Head of Information Services at Hong Kong Baptist University (HKBU) Library. He is responsible for overseeing the provision of reference services and instruction, and advises the Library's senior leadership team on the future direction of these programmes. Currently, he also chairs the Library's Web Development Team. Prior to coming to HKBU, he worked for three years as a school librarian in international schools in Hong Kong. Chris additionally works as a part-time lecturer for Charles Sturt University programmes in Information Studies delivered via the University of Hong Kong's School of Professional and Continuing Education. He was elected to the Council of the Hong Kong Library Association for two years in 2013, and serves as the Honorary Secretary. Chris holds a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Durham, a Master of Applied Science (Library and Information Management) from Charles Sturt University, and a Master of Education from the University of Hong Kong.